BULLETIN NO. 20

The Indochinese clandestine station "People's Radio, the Voice of the Revolutionary Committee of South Vietnam", which was first heard on 1 August 1955 as successor to "Republic Radio", last heard on 12 July 1955, is located at the corner of Rue Miche and Rue Richard in a house formerly occupied by Le Van Sang, former head of the Binh Xuyen Surete. Upon his departure from Saigon, the house was seized by the Diem government and turned over to the Revolutionary Committee. The station is off the air on nights that electric power is cut off, due to rationing, in the section of Saigon in which it is located.
